The terms of the SCIC-NRT apply mutatis mutandis to trains that run overnight but have seated coaches ("day coaches") only.

The introduction of this tariff, any amendments and additions to it, and any cancellation of it shall be made public by the RUs in the manner prescribed for them.

Terms that apply to both sleeping cars and couchette coaches are printed over the entire width of the page.

Terms that apply to sleeping cars only are printed on the left side of the page.	Terms that apply to couchette coaches only are printed on the right side of the page.

- 2 suspended

Participating and affiliated RUs

- 3 Participating RUs are those who operate night trains services. Affiliated RUs are those on whose operate neither sleeping nor couchette cars travel, but which sell services on behalf of participating RUs.

Basis in transport law

- 4 Unless specified otherwise below, the legal basis for transport in accordance with this tariff is the GCC-CIV/PRR, the terms of the Special Conditions of International Carriage for Non-integrated-Reservation Tickets (SCIC-NRT) and the terms of the Special Conditions of International Carriage for Integrated Reservation Tickets (SCIC-IRT).

Scope of validity

- 5 This tariff shall apply to all RUs that are parties to the SCIC-NRT and SCIC-IRT, with regard to the use of seats/berths in sleeping cars and couchette coaches running on routes of at least two RUs.

The tariff shall also apply if an RU issues reservation tickets for the domestic routes of another RU or for a third-party RU's coach that is running on the first RU's domestic routes.

Section A INDIVIDUAL PASSENGERS

Publishing of coach service

- 6 Trains that run with sleeping cars and/or couchette coaches are published in the timetable of the RUs on whose territory they run. The taking up and setting down of passengers may be limited during the night.
After the last station stop from which reservations can be purchased, no berths or couchettes shall be allocated to passengers who do not have reservation tickets unless there are compartments that have unoccupied berths or couchettes.

Berth classes and supplements

- 7 Depending on the coach type used, passengers can choose among

| Sleeping car compartments withfour beds (Quadruple);three beds (Triple);two beds (Double);one bed (Single). If the compartments are equipped withshowers and/or toilets, they are knownas Deluxe/Premium compartments. | Couchette compartments, which mayhave up to six seats/berths each. |
- 8 For trains where ticket and supplement is not issued in one ticket (NRT ticket + supplementary ticket) passengers being transported for a reduced fare or for free shall also pay a full supplement. For the use of certain couchettes and sleeping cars, a reduced supplement is charged for passengers who are exempt from paying the full supplement. The reduced supplement is specified in the section E.

The RUs shall be entitled to use bilateral and multilateral agreements to specify couchette and berth supplements that deviate from those listed in the section on couchette and berth supplements. One of the participating RUs must be the manager of the service. The connection must be exclusively within the territory of the RUs that are parties to the agreement.

The supplement shall always be paid when the seat/couchette/berth is ordered; a seat/couchette/berth reservation fee shall not be charged.

For travel in sleeping cars or couchette coaches on certain connections, "RIT" fares ("Rail including tours" with certain travel organisers) are charged as per the RIT guidelines.

Reservation tickets shall not be given to passengers unless the allocated seat/couchette/berth is marked on the tickets; passengers shall be given receipts for written seat/berth requests.

IRT (Global Price) tickets apply to some sleeping car and couchette-coach services. Each IRT price package includes a ticket; a berth, couchette or seat supplement (also known as a surcharge); and a reservation.

Coach classes and tickets

- 9 A reservation ticket and a ticket for the right train category and comfort class, valid for the section of the route to be spent in a sleeping or couchette car, is mandatory for using a night train.

The following rules apply:

In case of IRT (Global-Price) tickets:

All prices and supplements for using the different comfort classes and its services are included in the price of the IRT (Global-Price) ticket.

In case of NRT (tickets without integrated reservation of a seat or berth) or Rail Pass (RPT) tickets:

A second class NRT or RPT ticket in connection with a proper reservation for the desired comfort class is sufficient for the use of all night train comfort categories (seat, couchette, sleeping car), except for the Deluxe categories (as described in Nr.7).

For the use of a Deluxe cabin a first class NRT or RPT ticket is mandatory.

Exceptions from these general rules, valid for the trains of some carriers, are to be defined in the chapters of the special conditions of carriage for these carriers. (Section C). If such an exception is set, it applies for the entire route of the train.

Sleeping car and couchette availability on board

- 10 IRT (global price) tickets or NRT ticket and reservation supplement for sleeping and couchette car shall be sold by various distribution channels. After the departure of the train upgrading the service level (e.g. from seat to couchette, from Triple to Single, etc.) depending on the available places and can be bought on board from the attendant.

An IRT price (global price) shall be charged on board for trains that use the global price system.

Payment for on-board sales shall be accepted in the currency specified on the sleeping or couchette car ticket or in the equivalent amount in another currency related to the OD or the route of the train.

Seat/berth ordering and allocation

- 11 The terms of the SCIC-NRT apply to the ordering and allocation of seats/berths.

The terms of the special motorail trains apply to sleeping and couchette cars on motorail trains.

For reservations that cover two nights, one sleeping car or couchette supplement shall be issued for the entire journey.

Occupation of an entire compartment

- 12 Passengers who wish to have a multiple-berth compartment to themselves shall pay the full, adult rate, as specified in the tariff, for applicable supplements and tickets for unoccupied seats/berths.

This principle shall apply even if a passenger does not show up and a TRIPLE compartment reserved for three persons travelling together remains occupied by two persons who wish to have the compartment to themselves. If it is less expensive to buy two tickets and two Double supplements, then one or three tickets, whichever applies, and the three Triple supplements must be refunded and two new tickets (if first class is desired) and two Double supplements issued.	In compartments sold for four persons, four couchette places shall be considered to be offered even if six or five are available.

Changing of seats/courette/berths ordered

- 13 An exchange shall be considered a return and new booking in accordance with section 26.

When berths and couchettes ordered on motorail trains are changed, the same conditions shall apply to passengers who are bringing a car as apply to car places in accordance with the special SCIC-NT tariff on motorail trains.

The conditions of the present tariff shall apply to passengers who are not bringing a car.

Extension of route travelled, changing of seat/courette/berth type

- 14 If a passenger who already has a reservation ticket would like to travel further than the destination station marked on the ticket or in a higher service level then the value of the original sleeping car or courette ticket is to be applied in full to the price in the desired sleeping or courette car, and any difference in the supplements is to be charged subsequently.

Depending on the ticket and reservation type (IRT or NRT + supplementary ticket) the SCIC-NRT or SCIC-IRT apply to the ticket.

If a coach is cancelled and the only option is to assign a passenger to a higher service category, the passenger shall not be subsequently charged for the difference between the original price of the category and the higher price of the service category or for the difference in fare.

For missed connections confirmed by the RU and in other cases in which the RU is at fault, the terms for coach cancellations shall apply mutatis mutandis.

If the berth or courette a passenger booked cannot be allocated to him/her due to reasons for which the RU providing the coaches is at fault (technical disruption, coach not provided), a courette or berth in the same comfort class and/or category shall be allocated to the passenger if possible. If this is not possible, the passenger shall be either upgraded to a courette or berth in a higher comfort class and/or category or downgraded to a courette or berth in a lower one. In the event of an upgrade, the passenger shall not be subsequently charged for any difference in price between the reservation charges for the different comfort classes and/or categories; in the event of a downgrade, the passenger shall receive a refund for any difference.

These rules shall also apply if the passenger must be relocated to a coach of another RU on the same train.

If the service supplier allows:

- a Single compartment is used by two/three persons or
- a Double compartment is used by three persons and the second person is over ten years of age, the sleeping car attendant shall issue a new berth ticket at the full price based on the number of berths actually being used, and on the new berth ticket the attendant shall make note of the number and issuing RU of the original one. The original berth ticket shall be withdrawn.

The value of the original berth ticket on the day on which the exchange is made shall be credited towards the newly issued berth ticket, up to the latter's value.

If the value of the newly issued berth ticket is greater, the passenger shall be charged for the difference.

If the value of the newly issued berth ticket is lower, the number and class of the berths actually being used shall be noted on the receipt for the original berth ticket or on the certificate to be issued as a replacement. The passenger shall submit the ticket for a refund.

Children

- 15 The specifications of travelling of children based on section 12.3 of the SCIC-NRT or point 13/a SCIC-IRT shall apply when berths and couchettes are used by children.

The specific regulations for child ticket necessity, fare supplement, maximum age of sharing a bed and minimum age of travelling alone can be found in section D.

Accommodation of different genders

- 16 The following shall apply for the accommodation of different genders unless the passengers book the whole compartment.

A multiple-berth sleeping car compartment may be used together by persons of the same gender only, but some RUs provide only mixed compartments for all genders and compartments for women. Conditions for children are published on special pages	RUs shall not be obligated to provide separate men's or women's compartments in couchette coaches.
---	---

- 17 The right to a reserved sleeping car or couchette place shall expire if it is not asserted within the first 15 minutes after the train has left the station from which the passenger reserved the couchette or sleeping car.

- 18 The following terms shall apply to sleeping and couchette car, based on the time of day:

Passengers may request that they be woken.

From 9:00 pm, passengers using a compartment shall not be entitled to object to the couchettes/berths being set up if one of the passengers wishes to go to bed. In general, the couchettes/berths shall be set up from 10:00 pm without a request being necessary.

The main lighting must be switched off in the compartments set in their night-time position.

Ticket refunds

2. Tickets

All trains listed in Article 1 can only be booked with Integrated Reservation Tickets (IRT).

The Integrated Reservation Tickets (IRT) includes the fare for the journey, the reservation in the respective travel category as well as additional services (only in couchette and sleeper cabins) and is only valid for the booked train, travel day and route section.

All travel categories can be used with 2nd class tickets.

In principle, tickets are sold 180 days in advance. This period can be shorter for travel dates from mid-December due to the European timetable change and also all year round due to operational restrictions such as construction works and route closures. Despite these restrictions, in most cases booking is possible via www.nightjet.com, while all other sales channels are closed.

The departure and arrival time shown on the booked ticket may change at any time for operational reasons. Therefore, the correct departure time of the train must be checked before starting the journey (e.g. at www.nightjet.com/my-journey).

The booked seat/berth/bed on the train must be occupied not later than 15 minutes from departure; thereafter the claim to the booked place ceases to apply. Train staff are then entitled to assign these places to other customers.
